Year 9 Geology Trip Rocks

Mr Watters led two trips to the Salt Hill Trail at Clitheroe and the Roman Museum at Ribchester for the entirety of Year 9 this week.

With half the year group going on the trip on Tuesday and the other half on Thursday, pupils had a clip board each and worked towards expanding their knowledge out in the field.

The trip started at the large quarried rock facings of the Salt Hill Trail. The Geological formations of the rocks there mean the site is a designated SSSI (Site of Special Scientific Interest) and a unique protected area, as well as being part of an AONB (Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty).

Pupils were delivered a hands-on lesson on the formation of the rocks and the history of the quarry, before being given the opportunity to find their own crinoidal fossils to take home.

After lunch, pupils were then taken to the Ribchester Roman Museum and the surrounding area, where they studied the Roman Bath ruins, the River Ribble flood plains and the landscapes surrounding the ancient settlement; before heading into the museum to study the evidence of what life was like for Roman settlers in the area at the time.

Students then applied their landscape observations and findings to try to understand why Ribchester never quite flourished as other Roman settlements did and how the town's geological and geographical factors may or may not have had an influence.
